including surfing, news reading, short video, audio and text chatting. Compared with the normal news such as CNN, BBC, Aljazeera, the coverage is more comprehensive. Sensitive detection of the 2-aminoadenine lesion in DNA using antibody-functionalized AuPt alloy nanoparticles. AuPt alloy nanoparticles are synthesized with single-stranded DNA (ssDNA) as a template. Under optimized conditions, the ssDNA-bound nanoparticles exhibit high catalytic activities toward the detection of the 2-aminoadenine (2-AA) adduct in DNA. Furthermore, an antibody-conjugated AuPt alloy nanoparticle (Ab-AuPt) solution is prepared to develop a nanoparticle-based fluorescence assay for the detection of 2-AA in DNA. This method is simple, sensitive, and selective. It also enables the detection of 2-AA in crude cellular extracts, demonstrating its potential application in the detection of 2-AA adducts in cells. Efficacy and safety of treatment with the dihydropyridine compound nisoldipine in hypertension. A multicenter double-blind placebo-controlled study was performed to assess the efficacy of nisoldipine (SANDIGA) in the control of blood pressure in hypertensive patients. One hundred patients (69 male, 31 female) were recruited in each group. Mean age was 50.5 years. Hypertension had been diagnosed for less than 12 months in all cases. A previous antihypertensive treatment had been prescribed in 85 cases, but only in 10 cases did it include nisoldipine. Patients were assigned to receive 2-4 mg nisoldipine or placebo during 2 months. The nisoldipine/placebo groups showed significant decreases in diastolic blood pressure ( $p$  less than 0.001) at 1, 2 and 4 months with respect to the baseline measurements. Heart rate remained unchanged in both groups. Oral nisoldipine (SANDIGA) administered at 2-4 mg during 2 months is highly effective in reducing diastolic blood pressure in the majority of hypertensive patients, with a good
